Growing (& rowing) giant pumpkins

882-pounder didn't win its weight division -- but Southport man repeats water victory

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Scott Henkin grows bigger pumpkins than you do.

Everybody needs a hobby, and at least one of this rural Southport man's passions is to grow pumpkins for maximum size. The half-acre pumpkin field next to his house looked like something out of "Jack and the Beanstalk" a couple weeks ago, scattered with orange, boulder-sized gourds.

"I'm a retired peace officer," Henkin explained. "I retired from the California Youth Authority. This gives me something to mess around with. There's nothing you can really do with them — their walls are about a foot thick, and they don't have the sugar content of the smaller pumpkins."

But the pumpkins do give him the thrill of competition at the annual Elk Grove Pumpkin and Harvest Festival, which returned this month. Henkin used a small crane in his backyard to lift his biggest pumpkin of the season onto his pickup truck, and took the nearly half-ton beast to Elk Grove for the weigh-in. It didn't win — but Henkin did repeat last year's victory in the event's pumpkin paddling contest.

He joined other paddlers, hollowing out one of his specimens and using it as a boat for a 3-minute pumpkin race in a small lake. For the second time in two years, the West Sacramentan won the event.

Does he train for the paddling frenzy?

"No, that would take the fun out of it," the 51-year old told the News-Ledger before that race. But he recalled last year's win:

"One of the reasons I won is the other guys just got tired," said Henkin. "I just outlasted them."

The pumpkins are all variations of the "Atlantic Giant" variety. Serious growers like Henkin would never dream of letting them cross-pollinate in the fields naturally — they'd rather carefully control the genetics, matching pollen between two specimens that have desirable characteristics like size or color.

"You get some that are orange colored and some that may be big, but not necessarily orange. You pick and choose. The day before the flower is going to open, you put a bag over it so no bees or insects can get at the pollen. When the flower opens, you rub the two (chosen) flowers together by hand."

The result is a cross between two known varieties — and that's the only kind a serious grower would bother growing, he said. Serious giant pumpkin enthusiasts trade their seeds, identifying their exact pedigree. There are no other real tricks to getting a monster pumpkin, he said — just the usual "serious work" of fertilizing and watering.

Henkin is happy to share his giant pumpkin seeds.

MEET THE CANDIDATES:

The News-Ledger's traditional candidate interviews continue. This week, meet Heather Wright, who is running for a seat on the local school board, and Mark Johannessen, who would like to keep his position on the West Sacramento City Council

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Heather Wright has noticed that West Sacramento has been getting a lot of good press lately.

"But the only thing we haven't been in the news for is our schools," she commented. "I would like to see the community care more about the school system."

Wright, 34, is running for a seat on the school board of Washington Unified School District. She's a single mom, with kids in 7th and 8th grades, and has lived in the city since she was 12.

As a legislative assistant in the state capitol, Wright believes she has the skills needed to help make things happen in WUSD.

"Politics and government are based on personal relationships," said Wright. "When you are able to get along and to grasp issues, it comes easily."

Working under different bosses at the capitol, she has also worked on different legislative issues.

"I like education and foster care," said Wright.

The Southport resident is chipping away at college coursework as well, hoping for a college degree and a future as a math teacher. One of her kids attends Southport Elementary School in WUSD, and the other goes to school in Clarksburg because of a program lacking at Southport Elementary.

"I drive my kid 22 miles round-trip because we don't have a band program at Southport," she said.

As a board member, Wright feels she can help WUSD reach out to bring in both new ideas and new money from outside the city.

"I've been involved in my children's education, and because I come from a politics background, I feel I have a large number of friends and contacts," Wright said. There is a lot of stuff going on in other places, and I would draw from that. A board member's job, I think, is to constantly stay educated on what is working well, to stay in touch with the community, to make sure the budget is as streamlined as possible, and to find creative ways to find the money for things that will help."

Wright also wants to be a bridge between the town and the district.

"I would serve as a liaison between the school district and the community," she said.

Two seats are open on November's ballot, and only one incumbent

West Sacramento is getting a reputation as "the Sacramento that works," said Mark Johannessen, who is campaigning for another term on the local city council.

"I'm running again because a lot of good things have been happening in West Sacramento," he told the News-Ledger. "We've been getting huge press on new development in the city, and our reputation has taken a drastic change for the better. We've got low crime."

The state of the city is "really good," he added.

"We've got a $110 million budget and a $40 million general fund, and about 16 percent in reserves. We've got a rainy day fund. This state of the economy could go on for 20 years, and as long as we don't take any more hits from the state government, we're going to come out of this thing flying."

Johannessen is finishing his first term on the council, after being elected in 2006. Born in Southern California (to a father who was later a state senator), he attended Chico State and has an MBA and law degree. The 54-year old is married with a college-age daughter. He practices family law for a living.

His "collaborative" approach to family law, said Johannessen, has helped make him an effective councilman.

"Basically, there's a trend in family law now to move cases out of court and into collaborative negotiations," Johannessen explained. "That has a direct implication on stuff I do on the council. In a group of arguing people, yelling people, it's

Correction

In a news story last week, the News-Ledger omitted the name of one of the people running for a seat on the Washington Unified School District Board of Trustees. The article failed to mention candidate Walt R. Bowman.

We apologize for the error.

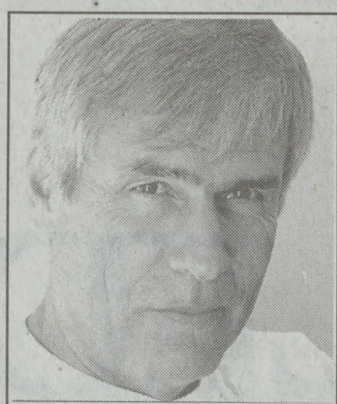

Walking for autism: a morning well-spent

This past Sunday, I joined family members and thousands of other people from all over the greater Sacramento area who had gathered at West Sacramento's Raley Field for the annual Walk for Autism in Sacramento. The two-mile route took walkers through River Walk Park up along the Sacramento River and then back to the ballpark, where organizers and local and state politicians had earlier made speeches promising to find more answers and funding for what has rapidly become the fastest-growing serious childhood developmental disability in the United States, with a new case of autism being diagnosed every 20 minutes.

Autism is a complex neuro-biological disorder which now strikes 1 in every 110 American children. That shocking number, provided by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, confirms other alarming government estimates. Autism occurs in all racial, ethnic, and social groups and is four times more likely to affect boys than girls. It impairs a young person's ability to communicate and relate to others and is associated with rigid routines and repetitive behaviors, and the symptoms can range from very mild to quite severe.

Walk Now for Autism, the nation's largest grassroots autism walk program, is Autism Speaks' signature fundraising and awareness event, taking place in communities across the United States, as well as in Canada and the United Kingdom.

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Powered by volunteers and families with loved ones on the autism spectrum, this successful grassroots fundraising effort not only generates vital funds for autism research but also attempts to raise awareness about the increasing prevalence of autism and the need for increased research funding to combat this complex and still poorly understood disorder.

According to information provided by Autism Speaks, if your child has symptoms related to autism, early intervention is critical to gain maximum benefit from existing therapies. Although parents may have concerns about labeling a toddler as "autistic", the earlier the diagnosis is made, the earlier interventions can begin. Currently, there are no effective means to prevent autism, no fully effective treatments, and no cure. Research indicates, however, that early intervention in an appropriate educational setting for at least two years during the preschool years can result in significant improvements for many young children with autism spectrum disorders. As soon as autism is diagnosed, early intervention instruction should begin. Effective programs focus on developing communication, social, and cognitive skills.

School districts everywhere are slowly becoming more aware of the problems faced by young students on the autism spectrum and parents of these children are encouraged to contact their school district long before their son or daughter starts kindergarten to learn more about the special programs and assistance that are available to them. Successfully navigating through a typical school day can be extremely difficult for a child on the autism spectrum and school administrators, teachers and parents need to be on the same page if an autistic child is going to have the best possible educational experience.

Children with autism spectrum disorders generally have problems in three crucial areas of development and here are the red flags compiled by the Mayo Clinic:

Although parents may have concerns about labeling a toddler as 'autistic', the earlier the diagnosis is made, the earlier interventions can begin.

Social skills: fails to respond to his or her name; has poor eye contact; appears not to hear you at times; resists cuddling and holding; appears unaware of others' feelings; seems to prefer playing alone and retreats into his or her own world.

Language: starts talking later than other children; loses previously acquired ability to say words or sentences; does not make eye contact when making requests; speaks with an abnormal tone or rhythm (may use a singsong voice or robot-like speech); can't start a conversation or keep one going; may repeat words or phrases, but doesn't understand how to use them.

Behavior: performs repetitive movements, such as rocking, spinning, or hand-flapping; develops specific routines or rituals; becomes disturbed at the slightest change in routine or rituals; moves constantly; may be fascinated by parts of an object, such as spinning wheels of a toy; may be unusually sensitive to light, sound and touch.

More than $195,000 was raised at this year's Walk for Autism in Sacramento and if you would like to learn more about autism and what you can do to help, please go to www.autismspeaks.org. If you would like to make a donation that will help with much needed research into autism, you can send it to Autism Speaks, 1060 State Road, 2nd Floor, Princeton, NJ 08540.

SPORTS INSIDER

By Rich Novoa

The Giants tortured their faithful fans again with another one run victory over the Atlanta Braves to advance to the NLCS best of seven series against the Philadelphia Phillies. The Giants ended up beating the Braves 3-2 on Monday night with a home run by castoff outfielder, Cody Ross to win the series in four games. Give credit to Giant's radio announcer Duane Kuiper for it calling Giants baseball "Torture".

The G-Men's two highest-paid hitters, Aaron Rowand and Edgar Renteria, have been benched and Barry Zito was left off the 25 man roster. To top it off, Kung Fu Panda, the Giants most promising hitter Pablo Sandoval has slumped his way into eighth spot in the lineup and didn't even play in game four.

In September alone, the Giants' lineup was held to one run or shut out altogether a total of eight times but somehow the Giants went 18-8 and made the playoffs. The Giants GM instead added the likes of Pat Burrell, Jose Guillen and Cody Ross which were another team's trash before they became the Giants new batting order surge.

Philadelphia, attempting to become the first NL team in 66 years to win three straight pennants, will host San Francisco in the NLCS opener on Saturday. The Giants will be trying to bring the City of San Francisco their first World Series title since moving from New York in 1957. Most recently the Giants lost to the Anaheim Angels in the 2002 World Series.

The Giants are one of the oldest baseball teams and have won the most games of any team in the history of American baseball. But the Giants have only won three pennants in San Francisco. I remember watching in Game 7 of the 1962 World Series when a potential game-winning hit by Willie McCovey was caught by Bobby Richardson crushing my young heart.

The Braves were within one out of taking control of the NL division series, but a 30-year-old journeyman infielder, Brooks Conrad, who wouldn't have been playing if not for season-ending injuries to Chipper Jones and Martin Prado simply couldn't catch the ball Sunday. Conrad made three errors, including a miscue in the ninth that led to the go-ahead run in the San Francisco Giants' 3-2 victory.

MLB Playoffs

The Phillies swept the Reds in three games and are now headed to the N.L. Championship series to play the Giants in the best of seven series. In the American League the Yankees brought out the broom to sweep Minnesota while the Tampa Rays battled back to tie their series against Texas. Game 5 is Tuesday.

I still like the Tampa Bay Rays chances to play the Yankees in the best of seven series but if the Rangers win in five games I like the Yankees to represent the American League in the World Series. The Yankees lost 17 of their final 26 regular-season games and finished as the AL wild-card team, one game behind AL East champ Tampa Bay.

The Phillies clinched early and will be enjoying their time off to study Giants for the National League Championship series. If the Giants can win one game in Philly an upset could be brewing in the National League. Giants win in six games! The G-Men have the Mojo working. The National League has the home field advantage his year in the World Series after winning the 2010 All-Star game.

Kings Korner

The Kings will be playing two more exhibition games in Las Vegas as they prepare to open up the 2010/11 season in Minnesota on October 27th. After the Kings open the season on the road against the Wolves, the Purple and Black attack will have back-to-back games starting on Oct. 29th in New Jersey and Cleveland. Kings home opener is Monday, November 1st.

NFL Week 6

I think the 49ers (0-5) have hit rock bottom with another bone head loss on national television. This time the Niners turned the ball over five times in their 27-24 loss to Philadelphia. Coach

Singletary finally took quarterback Alex Smith to the wood shed after Smith threw three consecutive incomplete passes in the series following his fumble that led the Eagles to a go-ahead touchdown and 24-10 fourth quarter lead.

At that point, the sold-out crowd of 69,672 Niners fans began screaming for Singletary to yank Smith out from behind center and replace him with back-up QB, David Carr. On national TV, Smith and Singletary screamed at each other with Smith finally convincing the coach to give him one more chance and Smith responded with an amazing with a six-play, 69 yard touchdown drive.

The next time the 49ers got the ball Smith guided a seven-play drive that finished with a touchdown pass to Gore to cut the Eagles lead to 3 points but with 1:28 left in the game Smith had his chance to deliver the 49ers first win but he threw another interception to end the game.

Da Raiders (2-3) shocked the San Diego Chargers at home 35-27 before an announced crowd of 48,279 in a stadium that holds 63,132. It's sad that all three Raiders home games have been blacked out on local TV. Matter of fact, their past 10 games have been blacked out and 79 of their 143 games since they moved back to the Oakland Coliseum in 1995 have been suffered the same fate.

The Raiders thrilled their fans with some great defense that ended a dreadful 13 game home losing streak against San Diego. It's amazing that the Chargers have been them at the black hole for 13 straight years but with NFL commissioner, Roger Goodell, attending the game in the press box with Big Al Davis the Silver and Black pulled the plug on the Chargers (2-3) putting them in a three way tie for second place in the AFL Western division.

Next Sunday, in San Francisco (1:15 p.m.), it's the "Battle of the Bay" with the 49ers (-6) favored over Da Raiders. No Black Out!

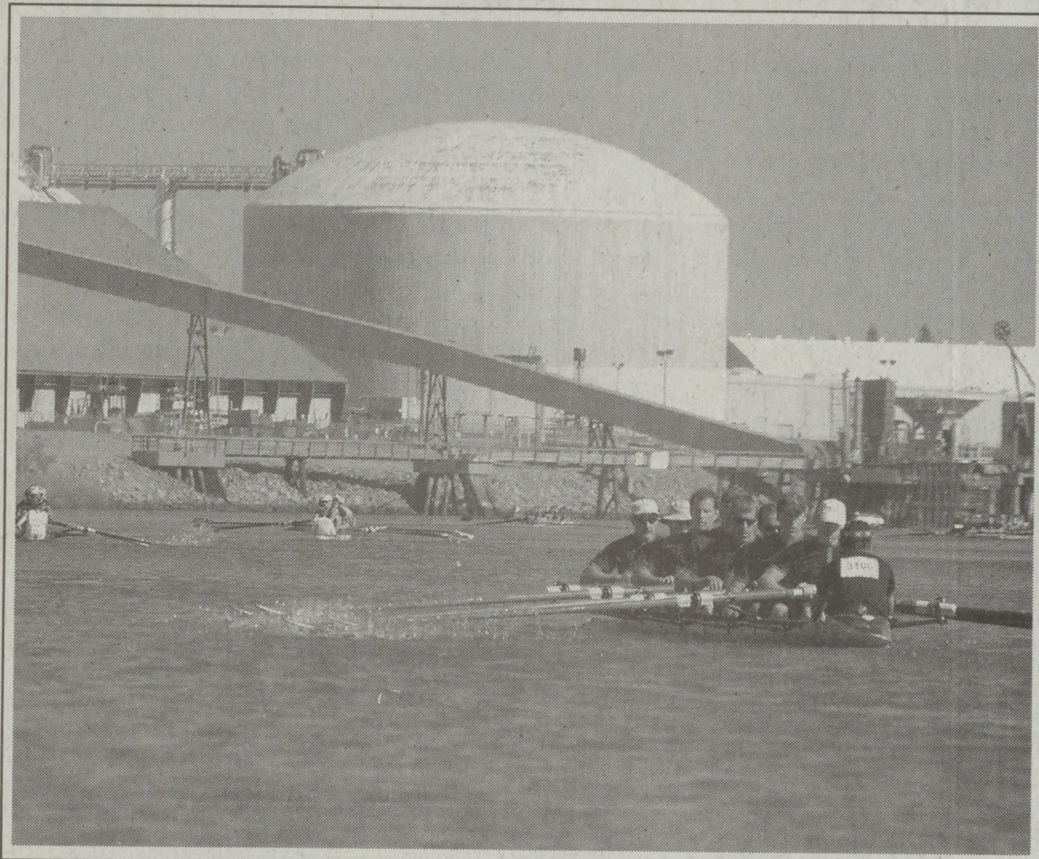

Mountain Lions

Rapper Flo Rida will perform both during Fan Fest and at halftime when the Sacramento Mountain Lions (1-2) play host to the Las Vegas Locomotives (2-1) in a key game for both teams Friday at 8 p.m. at Sac State Hornet Stadium. Special ticket prices for Friday's game are just $10 for California state employees.

Also, a $40,000 scholarship will be awarded to a college student if he or she is able to kick a field goal. Students with proper identification will receive $5 off tickets to Friday's game.

The River City High School varsity football team kept up its winning ways on Friday with a 53-0 victory over Liberty Ranch.

"It was a workmanlike effort," said RCHS Coach Arturo Bustamante. "I was impressed with the way we took care of business on both sides of the ball. We are the only team to have shut them down this season. Our job now is to continue to get better each week."

Mario Morales, David Oropesa and T.J. Soto each ran for touchdowns twice in the game for the Raiders. Also scoring were Adam Tyson and Jonathan Dunn.

Defensive standouts for RCHS included linebacker Phillip Herman, safety Ronnie Tillman, cornerback Jason Dunn and outside linebacker Ricky Garza.

Meanwhile, the Raider j.v.'s improved their own record to 4-2 with a 33-28 victory over Liberty Ranch.

For the junior varsity, Tucker McAmoil ran and passed for 115 yards, scoring a touchdown. Dominik Lawrence ran for 51 yards, Andy Pich ran for 48 and had two defensive fumble recoveries and three defensive tackles. Malik Dumetz had 93 yards including two touchdown receptions. Juan Lazcano ran for 131 yards, scoring twice. The Raiders' Artis Jackson posted 14 tackles, Max Harrison had eight, and Lawrence Herman had three tackles and an interception.

Dakota McAmoil had six tackles and a quarterback sack against Liberty High.

This Friday, River City hosts Encina High in RCHS's homecoming game. Game time is 5 p.m. for the j.v.'s and 7:15 for varsity.

important to find out what people are saying — my job is to create an environment where collaboration can occur.”

“The biggest example of that,” he added, “was with the Bridge District. I worked with the development community and with staff to set up a technical advisory committee to work on the problems as they came up. For instance, the fire department wants wide streets for their trucks, but people want narrow protected streets to walk on. We came up with narrow streets with park spaces that can serve as turn-arounds for fire fighting vehicles — fire trucks can go over the landscaping, which can be replaced.”

The West Sacramento City

Council has done a serious round of belt-tightening in this recession.

“We’ve had some layoffs,” Johannessen acknowledged. “Employees and staff have shared the pain pretty equally. We didn’t have any labor strikes. The employees’ relationship with the city is as a team. We’ve lost some major department heads (encouraged to take early retirement). We’ve had to reduce counter hours for building permits, and there are some minor inconveniences to people. But I think (city manager) Toby Ross has done an outstanding job.”

The current city council is “great,” said Johannessen. “One of the problems a lot of other cities are seeing is dysfunctional councils, or bickering or gamesmanship. We all have our disagreements, but we have a cohesive council. Discussions are open, and we can differ.”

Johannessen wants the city to keep working to attract upper-end employers.

“Minimum wage jobs are okay, but what I’m seeing is that when higher-paying jobs come in, white collar jobs come in... they’ll spend money here.”

That helps sales tax revenues, which helps city services.

Is the current city government taking any wrong turns?

“No,” said Johannessen. “We still have issues in Bryte and Broderick, and we’re paying attention to traffic — we have issues we have to keep an eye on. Everything we’re doing is on the right track.”

How’s West Sacramento handling its flood control challenge?

“Money from the state and federal government is not all there yet (for levee upgrades), so we’re going ahead with the work and expecting to be reimbursed later, and we will be reimbursed.”

The city has worked with FEMA, he said, to slow down the re-categorization of the city’s levees and give more time for improvements. Had FEMA downgraded West Sacramento’s levees, he said, construction could have halted and new fees would never come in to pay for the fixed levees.

“This is really the only way to do it — if we stop building, we don’t have the fees,” said Johannessen.

What does he think of the planned downtown streetcar system?

“It’s absolutely a good idea,” he answered. “I’ve been working with the development community because the development community is going to foot the bill for a lot of it.”

Johannessen added that he is pushing for the city to look at alternatives to the planned power-line streetcar system:

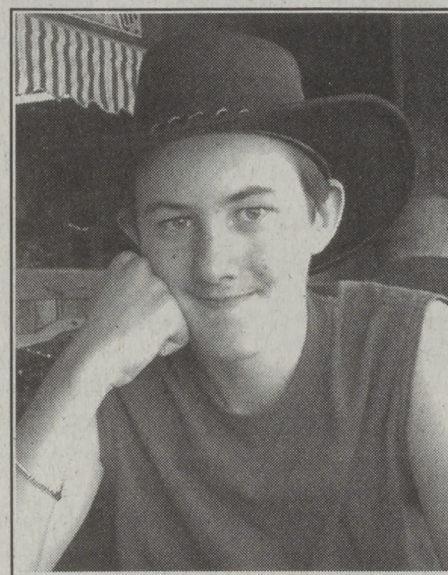

“I’d like to see self-propelled streetcars put on those rails — basic streetcars that are battery powered or operate off some sort of biodiesel, propane gas, or, most interestingly, fuel cells. It drastically reduces the construction cost because you don’t need power lines.”

What about the city’s plan to help get a large riverfront hotel built?

“It would bring a lot of good jobs and it’s at a prime location,” he said. “It would be a real boon to West Sacramento, with a first-class restaurant and additional conference facilities. Whether it’s doable remains to be seen. There are benchmarks

(Sandra Vargas) is in the running for one of them. What does Wright think of the performance of the current WUSD school board?

“They’re doing a good job,” she said. “I think the board we have right now has done a fantastic job of getting us through this economy. We’re going through huge changes, going to the K-8 (elementary school) system, and we’ve had about four superintendents in six years.”

How are local students doing on standardized test scores?

“I believe we’ve improved at all our schools,” Wright answered, “but we haven’t improved enough to bring us out of (state-monitored) ‘program improvement’ status. What I’d like to do is find out what other countries are doing, because we’re around 23rd or 25th in math and language arts... (but) the state and federal government really dictate a lot of what we do.”

How does the district’s budget look?

“It’s a big challenge,” said Wright. “However, there’s money out there. We can write grant (proposals) for different projects, whether it’s reading programs, or field trips, or other programs, to fill the gap.”

Meanwhile, she added, the district can do better at sharing information about teaching techniques that work.

“There can be better communication in every direction — between teachers from one school to another, from the district to the schools and to the public, so we all know what’s going on.”

Is the district doing a good job preparing kids for a future that, for some students, doesn’t include college?

“I do know that when they built this new high school, they did not include or bring over any of the shop programs, which was a huge disappointment to many families,” said Wright. “I think now there are ideas floating around as to how to reinvent the campus. There are lots of different things that help keep kids interested in school, and that’s one of them.”

Wright said that local high school rates can be improved, and that WUSD can also learn from charter schools both inside and outside the district.

“We have a charter school in our district, and there are other things going on in education outside West Sacramento,” said Wright. “It comes down to having our superintendent visit those other places and ask questions and come back here and implement what’s working.”

Wright’s past community involvement includes service on a WUSD site council at Westmore Oaks Elementary School, and three years on the board of the local swim club.

Two of the school board’s five seats are on the ballot for November. Only one incumbent, Sandra Vargas, is running again. Also on the ballot are challengers Adam Menke and Walt R. Bowman.

NEWS-LEDGER EDITORIAL:

'Raider Fever' & other tidbits

Have you noticed that people around town are talking about River City High's winning football team this season? These Raiders are still undefeated at 6-0. Under Coach Art Bustamante, they've racked up a string of mostly-lopsided victories.

That's why the sudden case of Raider Fever in West Sacramento. The community is paying attention to its high school football team, and it's taking pride.

Somebody tell those "mater freighter" trucks on the highway, with their trailers full of red-ripe tomatoes headed for local processing plants: this is October, for goodness sake. It's almost Halloween. There is Christmas merchandise on the store shelves. This is the season for pumpkins and little goblins, not for tomatoes.

If you needed proof that this was a ridiculously mild Central Valley summer, the proof is in those double trailers you just passed on the Causeway.

South of here in Clarksburg, St. Joseph's Catholic Church plans a repeat of last year's chili cookoff competition. The event is a fundraiser. It's scheduled for Nov. 7, and $5 gets you the right to taste and to vote for the best chili.

That makes it a competition.

Nothing against Clarksburg's cooks, who probably can probably warm up a workmanlike corn or zucchini. But surely West Sacramento can make a better chili. West Sac needs to send a few chili-cooking teams down Jefferson Boulevard on November 7 to educate that township on the proper use of peppers.

Fill out your entry forms and soak those beans (which, by the way, are optional). Then bring back news of victory.

Letters to the Editor

You can help local schools

Due to cutbacks at our school district, the teachers no longer have teachers' aides in their classrooms.

I am proud to say that my children go to Elkhorn Village Elementary School and are now in the 2nd and 3rd grades. I have volunteered to help read with them a half-hour per class. My schedule allows me to do that.

Now is the time for us as parents of this community to step up and volunteer at school. It only takes an hour out of my day when I can go. I walk away with a good feeling knowing that I have helped out a little. I have gotten to know the principal, staff, teachers, yard duty and cafeteria employees on a first-name basis. The principal, Mr. Gonzales, is a hands-on guy. He goes into all the classrooms and is involved in the dropping off and picking up of students for their own personal safety. He and his office staff do an exceptional job with our children's daily needs, from uniforms to runny noses.

My older children went to schools in the San Juan School District. They had more bells and whistles, but not the effort the Elkhorn Village faculty and staff put into it.

If you can find the time to volunteer to help out our children, I think they and you would enjoy and appreciate it.

“Predators” (R)

Produced by and based on a script by Robert Rodriguez (“Grindhouse,” “From Dusk Till Dawn”), “Predators” breathes new life into an embarrassingly awful franchise and offers up a healthy dose of cheesy good fun. A buffed-up Adrien Brody stars as the leader of a group of eight people who are mysteriously deposited on an alien planet to be hunted as sport by an alien species. Thanks to an R rating, there’s gore aplenty, but also a few laughs, a couple of shocking moments and twist ending. “Predators” isn’t a great film by any stretch of the imagination, but it’s a solid B-movie and ripping good guilty pleasure.

“Apocalypse Now Three-Disc Full Disclosure Edition” (Blu-Ray) (R) — This collection is a must-have for fans of Francis Ford Coppola’s opus set during the Vietnam War. The three-disc collection contains “Apocalypse Now” and “Apocalypse Now Redux” in 1080p high-def and — for the first time — in their original aspect ratio. Included is the riveting making-of documentary “Hearts of Darkness,” which contains a commentary track with Eleanor and Francis Ford Coppola. There also are tons of new special features, including interviews with Martin Sheen and John Milius, a 48-page book with behind-the-scenes photos and too many more goodies to mention.

“Psycho 50th Anniversary Edition” (R) — You probably could fill a library wing with all the material that’s been written about this movie, and given the many, many releases of “Psycho” on home video through the years, chances are you’ve seen most of the special features included in this version. That said, if you’re a film purist, then you’ll want this new Blu-Ray release because it’s the only video release of the movie in its original aspect ratio.

Anthony Perkins stars in “Psycho”

“Vampire Girl vs. Frankenstein Girl” (Unrated) — This is the latest in the new wave of low-budget Japanese extreme schlock cinema (“Machine Girl,” “Robogeisha”), a genre that features shocking scenes of over-the-top gore and horror so extreme that it goes beyond grotesque into the realm of the ridiculous. Because this is a family-friendly column, I can’t even begin to describe how deliciously bizarre this movie is. Trust me though, watching this movie could screw you up for life.

Errol and Olivia: Ego and Obsession in Golden Era Hollywood
 by Robert Matzen
 (GoodKnight Books, $39.95)
 Reviewed by Larry Cox

In 1935, Olivia de Havilland was just 19 years old when she stepped onto a soundstage in Hollywood to make a screen test with Errol Flynn. Flynn was immediately smitten, despite the fact that he was already married to French actress Lili Damita. Flynn and de Havilland would go on to become one of the top Hollywood box-office love teams of the 1930s and ‘40s, co-starring in eight films that earned millions of dollars for Warner Brothers, including such classics as “The Adventures of Robin Hood” and “They Died With Their Boots On.”

Robert Matzen’s extensive research reveals the true story of these two beautiful, complex people who, despite their international fame, were incredibly unhappy. Olivia de Havilland was usually portrayed as a great lady and America’s sweetheart in her films, but Matzen maintains she also had a wild side. Her love interests included actor James Stewart, Howard Hughes and the very-married writer-director John Huston. She also was the one who sued Jack L. Warner for her right to work independently, thereby bringing an end to the so-called studio system.

Errol Flynn’s private life was needlessly to say, not so private. He built a reputation for one-night stands with women from all walks of life. His drunken brawls often were splashed across the front pages of newspapers. His short temper triggered fights, especially with men who were also attracted to de Havilland. One of those men was Ronald Reagan.

“Errol and Olivia” is especially appealing because of the dozens of illustrations scattered throughout the text, some of which are being published for the first time. As de Havilland approaches her 95th birthday in Paris, this book is both a fitting tribute to the contributions she made to her craft and an exploration of the incendiary relationship she had with Flynn, an association that reverberates even after the passage of 75 years.

The Sacramento River registered 3 feet 4 inches U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge yesterday.

Mrs. Mary Farbina, with her brother-in-law Louis Simonini, were visitors yesterday for Thanksgiving at the Caffero home on Third street. Mrs. Farbina is a daughter of the family and Simonini is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Caffero. Both returned to their homes in Suisun last night.

Frank Mori, a Japanese of Riverbank, came very close to a sad accident yesterday forenoon at the Third street crossing at the end of the Southern Pacific bridge. Instead of carefully watching the turn at the end of the bridge with its many bumps and chuckholes, he was gazing at the horizon and as a consequence broke a front spring of his automobile. The car continued on the downward grade on Ann street, but when it struck the smooth pavement skidded so badly that it turned right around and continued up the grade it had just left. Luckily there were no cars approaching from the opposite direction or he would surely have done damage. Since the S. P. Co. turned over to the Supervisors the care and maintenance of this crossing it has become rather dangerous and now that no care is given to it it will become a menace in a short time.

Last Sunday another victim of prohibition was found under the M street bridge suffering from neglect and hunger. He had wandered over from Sacramento to find a place to die because he said he could get no more cocaine because he was no longer able to avoid the police in stealing articles he could sell to buy the drug. He was taken to the County Hospital in Woodland by Constable Buckingham and died the following day. In this connection it is pertinent to note that Chief of Police McShane of Sacramento has promised the Washington authorities he will no longer drive the poor wretches who are victims of drugs across the bridge, but will take them before the Township Justice of Sacramento where they will either be sentenced to the City Jail or sent to some State asylum that will take proper care of them.

"Moochy" Mathena is seriously grieving over an accident that happened to his Jeffries car last Sunday while on his way to Weimar to visit an old friend who is confined there suffering from tuberculosis. When he had nearly reached the end of his journey that famous Jeffries car of his refused to go farther against the hill and when he tried to force it there was an explosion, with pieces flying around on all sides. Muchy tried to get those pieces in place again, but they refused to fit, and he gave it up as a bad job. He telephoned down to his friend, Denver Fat, who went after him in his Haynes Speedster. They arrived home at about 3 o'clock the next morning, and made that the excuse for failing to work during the remainder of the week. Their friends are sympathizing with them, but feel that they have had enough rest by now and should return to their jobs.

Hugh Chalmers was a visitor around Washington yesterday with old friends and was treated to a Thanksgiving dinner that opened his eyes at the Lear home. Hugh is an old timer in this locality, having worked for the firm of Mebius &

During the past week Supervisor Leinberger has had several teams hauling sand and filling to several low places on the streets of Washington. The rain of the past few days showed up these low spots while the ground was not so soft as to prevent heavy teaming. The Supervisor intends keeping the teams at work as long as possible so that all bad places may be filled before the heavy rains make them impassable.

BENNETTS APPOINTED POSTMASTER FOR NEXT FOUR YEARS

A very appropriate Thanksgiving present was handed J. N. Bennetts yesterday when he received his commission as Postmaster at Broderick from President Harding for the four years beginning October 11th.

The commission was signed by Postmaster-General Will H. Hays and countersigned by Warren G. Harding.

This is the first commission of its kind to be received here, although there have been Postmasters for many years, but the exception was made in this instance because it was only lately that the office was raised from fourth class to third class, making it a salary instead of a fee office.

The salary attached to the position is $1,000 per annum.

Bennetts has done a great deal to enhance the Postoffice at Washington. When he took it over from the Hinman store nine years ago there were only 54 lock boxes. To-day there are 431, with a probable increase in that number very soon, and a great increase in mail for parties who do not rent boxes.

He devoted all his time to the Postoffice for several years and did not hesitate to go out of his way to accommodate patrons. He went so far as to go and collect out-going mail so as to increase the revenue of the office.

There is still room for improvement. Many persons living at this side of the river deposit and receive their mail in Sacramento.

Just as good service can be had through the Broderick Postoffice and the trip across the bridge could be saved.

It must be borne in mind too that since Bennetts took hold of the Postoffice there have been established the offices at Bryte and West Sacramento.

Naturally these latter took away from the Broderick office a great deal of patronage, but it continued to increase nevertheless.

Bennetts received his appointment without examination owing, it is believed, to the excellent record made by him during his incumbency.

WILD RIDING NEARLY BROUGHT FATAL RESULTS IN SMASH-UP

Last Sunday afternoon about 3 p. m. a serious accident happened to Constable H. B. Buckingham at Mullen's Station on the S. P. line between Davis and Woodland.

Accompanied by Martin McDonough, a friend, E. Holmes, his son-in-law and Holmes' 4-year-old son, Buckingham had been to a ranch in the Sutter Basin for turkeys. His trailer held 12 birds when the accident happened.

Otto Storz, a young farmer of the locality, rode a motorcycle out of a side road at such speed he could not stop when he reached the highway. Buckingham saw him coming and edged off the road to prevent a collision, but Storz could not stop and hit Buckingham's auto, although the car was off the paved portion of the road at the time of the collision.

So great was the impact that the auto was turned over on its side and its occupants spilled on the side of the road.

All were bruised badly and Holmes sustained a gash on his face and finger requiring 18 stitches to close them. McDonough's shoulder was bruised and the little boy's leg badly strained.

Constable Buckingham has been confined to his home since the event suffering with bruises and shock.

The motorcycle climbed on top of the auto and was badly damaged. The auto is practically a wreck, and cannot be repaired for less than about $250. Two fenders are gone. The radiator is punctured. The fan is without blades and one headlight is gone.

The trailer of turkeys was not upset and remained intact.

A. The 2007 California Administrative Code, Title 24, Part 1, Chapters 4, 5 and 8 only.

B. The 2007 California Building Code, Title 24, Part 2 of the California Code of Regulations, including the following Appendices only: Chapter 1 (Administrative), as further amended herein, Chapter C (Group U — Agricultural Buildings), Chapter I (Patio Covers) and Chapter J (Grading).

C. The 2007 California Electrical Code, Title 24, Part 3 of the California Code of Regulations.

D. The 2007 California Mechanical Code, Title 24, Part 4 of the California Code of Regulations.

E. The 2007 California Plumbing Code, Title 24, Part 5 of the California Code of Regulations.

L. The following voluntary measures (appendices) from 2010 CALGreen Code (California Code of Regulations, Title 24, Part 11): A4.203.1, Tier 1 (Energy performance); A4.303.1, Tier 1 and Tier 2 (Kitchen faucets and dishwashers); A4.304.1 (Low-water consumption irrigation system); A5.203.1.1 (Tier 1 Energy efficiency — 15% above Title 24, Part 6); A5.304.2.1 (Outdoor potable water use); and A5.303.2.3.1 (Tier 1-30% Savings [BSC] 30% Savings. [DSA-SS]).

Section 4. Addition. The following section is hereby added to Chapter 15.12 of the West Sacramento Municipal Code to read as follows:

15.12.045 Amendment to CALGreen Code

For purposes of all sections of the CALGreen Code that the City adopts by reference, any addition that increases the floor space of an existing building by over four thousand (4000) square feet shall be considered new construction under the CALGreen Code.

Section 5. Applicability. The portions of CALGreen Code that are hereby adopted by reference shall be applicable to residential and non-residential uses of property as provided in CALGreen Code itself.

Section 6. Findings. The City Council of the City of West Sacramento hereby finds and declares the following:

A. The modifications to the 2010 CALGreen Code mandatory provisions provided in Sections 3 and 4 of this Ordinance are reasonably necessary due to local climatic, geologic and topographic conditions, specifically:

1. Summer ambient temperatures in the City during the months of June, July and August can reach over 100 degrees, creating peak energy load demands that can cause power outages, affecting public safety and causing adverse local economic impacts.

2. The total square footage of conditioned habitable space within residential and nonresidential buildings in the City has been increasing, using more energy and resources than in the past.

3. The burning of fossil fuels used in the generation of electric power and heating of buildings contributes to climate change, which could result in increased temperatures in the City, which could put homes and businesses at risk for increased water shortages, wildfires and other public health and safety hazards.

4. Reduction of total and peak energy use as a result of incremental energy efficiency measures required by this Ordinance will have local and regional benefits in the cost-effective reduction of energy costs for building owners, additional available system energy capacity, and a reduction in greenhouse gas emissions; and

B. The study conducted by Gabel Associates, LLC has concluded that the energy efficiency standards contained in this Ordinance are cost-effective. The City Council hereby adopts as the basis of its findings the conclusions of the study and acknowledges the filing the ordinance with the California Energy commission in compliance with Public Resources Code 25402.1(h) (2). This Ordinance shall be enforceable subject to the requirements set forth in such state code; and

C. Nothing in this ordinance is intended to duplicate, contradict, or infringe upon provisions of state law, including the California Building Standards Code; and

D. This ordinance is intended to ensure that all building subject to this ordinance will consume no more energy than what is permitted by the California Building Energy Efficiency Standards (Title 24, Part 6) of the California Building Code.

Section 7. Filing of Ordinance. The City Clerk is hereby directed to file a copy of this ordinance with the California Building Standards Commission.

Section 8. Severability Clause. If any section, subsection, paragraph, sentence, clause or phrase of this Ordinance for any reason shall be held to be invalid or unconstitutional, the decision shall not affect the remaining portions of the Ordinance. The Council of the City of West Sacramento hereby declares that it would have passed this Ordinance and each article, section, subsection, paragraph, sentence, clause or phrase which is a part thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more articles, sections, subsections, paragraphs, sentences, clauses or phrases are declared to be invalid or unconstitutional.

Section 9. Effective Date and Publication. This Ordinance shall take effect 30 days after its adoption, and pursuant to Resolution 99-46, published in summary format prior to adoption and within 15 days after adoption in a newspaper of general circulation published and circulated within the City of West Sacramento.

PASSED AND ADOPTED by the City Council of the City of West Sacramento this 6th day of October, 2010, by the following vote:

AYES: Johannessen, Kristoff, Villegas, Cabaldon
NOES: None
ABSENT: Beers
